

THE FIRST STATION

THE LAST MEAL

Think of the last supper Jesus had with His friends. He chose the natural and homely setting of a meal to share His final teaching with them. He tells them to love one another, as He has loved them. Here, in a few quiet moments before His betrayal, Jesus shares bread and wine with His friends. We may remember also that later on, after rising from the dead, He was to share another meal with them when He ate bread and fish on the sea shore. It is the same Jesus, living then and living now.

We might recall significant shared moments; times of sadness - and times of celebration too.

Sharing assists our growing together in loving and caring for one another.

While breaking bread together as Jesus taught us, we remember His teaching. He is in our midst, just as He promised.

Let us pray that we will have deeper love for our neighbour, and will care for each other, as Jesus wishes us to do.
